Given the contractual nature of our relationships, the provision of personal and sensitive data is voluntary, however, it is a necessary condition for concluding an insurance contract.

2. Why we process personal data and what entitles us to do so Whether we require your consent to process your personal data depends on the type of processing involved and your relationship with the Insurance Company. Whether you are an insurance applicant, a policyholder (the person taking out the insurance contract), an insured person (the person whose life, health, property, or liability is covered by the insurance, a third party (owner, operator), an injured party, or whether you are an authorized person who will receive insurance benefits if an insurance claim is settled.

We process the personal data:

a) without your consent, based on the performance of a contract, our legitimate interest, or for the purpose of complying with legal obligations;
b) with your consent.

Processing of personal data without your consent

We will process your personal data when we offer you the option to arrange, change, or terminate insurance; in this context, we will present you with draft contracts and perform preparatory and analytical work, calculations, model situations, risk assessments, and evaluations of your individual situation. The processing of personal data within the framework of the performance of the contract also includes assistance with insurance administration, investigation of insurance claims, payment of benefits under insurance contracts, including processing carried out prior to the conclusion of the contract, even if the contract is not ultimately concluded. The performance of the contract also includes the collection and recovery of insurance premiums. When investigating insurance claims, we may also process special categories of data (health data) and information relating to criminal matters, decisions, and proceedings. We also process your personal data if you participate in various customer programs, campaigns, or competitions in relation to the fulfilment of our obligations under these programmes.

In addition, we will process your personal data for the purpose of protecting our rights and legitimate interests. This includes, for example, determining, defending, and enforcing rights arising from insurance. To protect our interests, we also record telephone calls so that we can continue to improve our services. We process certain special categories of personal data (health data) after the conclusion of the contract because of the necessity to determine, exercise, or defend legal claims. This includes, for example, improving and developing our services based on an analysis of your behaviour when using them. It also includes the assessment of the customer satisfaction with our services, the protection of property and persons, the prevention and detection of criminal or illegal activities, and the segmentation of clients. This also includes direct marketing aimed at our customers, including informing our customers about our new products and services. Based on legitimate interest, we also process the identification and contact details of injured parties, authorized persons for the purposes of settling insurance claims, owners/operators, representatives of legal entities, legal representatives, other persons authorized to represent the policyholder or insured person for the purposes of concluding an insurance contract, assessing insurance eligibility, administration, termination of an insurance contract, settlement of insurance claims, prevention and detection of insurance fraud.

It is possible to raise an objection to processing based on legitimate interests, which we will consider and evaluate whether the processing in question meets the requirements of the regulation.

We will also process your personal data to fulfil our legal obligations. These include obligations arising from regulations regulating insurance activities, but also general obligations in data storage and archiving, administrative obligations, and the obligation to cooperate with public authorities. We are also required to process your personal data for the purposes of preventing and detecting money laundering and terrorist financing. For this reason, we will perform identification, and verification checks on you

Processing of personal data with your consent for the purposes of offering services and marketing purposes
With your consent, we will process your personal data to evaluate your needs and assess the appropriateness of insurance, as well as to assess the risk when entering the insurance contract, the data on the use of services, for the purpose of sending discounts or other offers of our services (carrying out our own marketing activities). This helps us to understand and identify your needs better, create analyses, offer products and services that meet those needs, and improve our services. We may process your personal data in connection with direct marketing activities at your request (e.g., filling out a contact request form, subscribing to a newsletter). In such cases, consent is voluntary and may be revoked at any time. However, revoking consent does not affect the legality of processing before the time of revocation.

Processing of sensitive data with your consent
We may require your consent to process sensitive personal data in some situations, particularly health data, before concluding an insurance contract and when carrying out an investigation into a claim. For certain insurance products, consent to the processing of this personal data is a prerequisite for concluding an insurance contract or for determining whether and to what extent an insured event has occurred. For these reasons, once you have given your consent to the processing of sensitive personal data to the extent necessary, you cannot revoke it for as long as we are authorized to process it.
